CAMP TIME

God has been providing the supplies, scholarships, and volunteers needed to make it possible for every child to have a meaningful week of camp. A volunteer team of teens spent a day at camp preparing the grounds and the building. Another team will be there June 1 for finishing touches to the camp.

So far, about 75 teachers have volunteered for a week of camp and about 25 more are needed. Sixty-four teenagers attended junior counselor trainings held last month and are equipped to serve one or more weeks this summer.

The chapel programs have been written, songs and verses have been chosen, games have been planned, and sno cone syrup is on the shelf!

We're so thankful for the seven teenagers who will help as junior staff this summer. What a blessing they are to us and to the camp.

On June 17th it all begins as the first group of campers and volunteers arrive. Praise God for what He has planned for our camp this summer.

CORA

Cora is finishing her junior year of high school this month. This means it's time for SAT testing and college applications. Over the past few months, we've been able to take her to visit colleges in Indiana, South Carolina, Texas and Oklahoma. God is working in her life to bring her to a decision about her future.

JACOB

Jacob had his 6th grade piano recital recently. He really enjoys playing the piano and we're excited to give him some opportunities to use this talent to serve God. This summer will be the last year he can be a camper at Good News Camp. He plans to do that the very first week and then come back later in the summer as a helper for a week or two.

CALEB

Caleb is getting excited about his upcoming mission's trip to the Dominican Republic. Caleb, Cora and 28 other team members have been working hard to prepare and will be there from June 21-29. Thanks for praying for their team as they reach out to teens in the city of San Francisco de Macoris.

OLIVIA

Olivia is signed up for overnight camp this month. She's so excited because the camp offers horsemanship and she has always wanted to learn to ride horses. She'll be going the week of June 23. Pray that she has a great time and doesn't get homesick. Even though she'll only be a few miles down the road, it's her first time away from home for that long.
