CAMP TIME

God has been providing the supplies, scholarships, and volunteers needed to make it possible for every child to have a meaningful week of camp. A volunteer team of teens spent a day at camp preparing the grounds and the building. Another team will be there June 4 for finishing touches to the camp.

So far, about 55 teachers have volunteered for a week of camp, but many more are needed. About sixty teenagers attended junior counselor trainings held last month and are equipped to serve one or more weeks this summer.

Meanwhile, the Teeter house is being cleaned, painted and repaired in anticipation of our family moving in. We've slowing been packing our things and transporting them by the truckload. We hope to make the permanent move during the first week of June before the start of camp. Our home in Chambersburg has been put on the market. Pray that God will send a buyer quickly and that the home can be a blessing to another family.

CORA

Cora will graduate on May 30. She is honored to be named Valedictorian of her class and she's working hard on her speech. She had a wonderful time with her class in Williamsburg on their senior trip.

She recently "met" her college roommate online and is excited to get to know her before they meet face-to-face in August.

JACOB

Jacob had his 7th grade piano recital recently. He still enjoys playing the piano and recently had a chance to play at a local church. All of our kids have become good painters over the past few weeks as we've been painting rooms in our new home. Although they've gotten good at it, they've all agreed they don't want to be professional painters.

CALEB

Caleb is working hard to learn the lessons for serving as a summer missionary. So far, he's been working on presenting the Wordless Book and memorizing the Bible verses he'll be expected to teach. He's going to have several opportunities to practice over the next few weeks as he goes along with Dan to various ministries.

OLIVIA

Thanks for your prayers for Olivia. She is much more excited about moving than she was a few weeks ago. She loved being able to pick out the paint color for her room. She also really loves wandering around the camp property when we're there. Of all our children, she's always enjoyed being outdoors the most so it's like a big playground for her.
