

GOOD NEWS

WAITING FOR SPRING

Usually this is the time of the year when we turn our focus to the camp property to being preparations for the summer. The lingering cold weather has delayed this task a bit this year. The camp building is very cold and we're waiting to turn on the water until the temperatures rise a bit more. These factors restrict how much time we can spend at camp.

Luckily, there are other preparations to be made off-site. We're in the process of planning songs, games, crafts, recreation ideas, snacks, devotional books, and teachers' supplies. Since we work on a 5 year rotating curriculum, much of this work is simply editing which saves a fair amount of time. It's a lot of fun to pull out the items from 2013 and remember the exciting times we had. We pray that 2018 will be just as memorable and life-changing for the many children, teens, and adults that will be involved in camp throughout the coming months.

CORA AND SETH

Cora and Seth are both entering their last stretch of student teaching before graduation. For their last five weeks, they'll be teaching at schools in Oklahoma City. Cora will be teaching 4th grade and Seth will be teaching middle school math. Graduation is scheduled for April 27 so we'll all be traveling to Oklahoma at the end of the month to celebrate.

CALEB

Caleb had Spring Break in early March. He mostly used the time to work on some very big projects that he has coming up before the end of the semester. He's learning so much from his classes. We feel like he's becoming the new theological expert in our family.

JACOB

Jacob got to travel to Ohio this past month with his school team for a basketball tournament. Michelle was able to go with him. They all had a great time of fun and fellowship as well as some great basketball. He is enjoying more time at home now that the season is over.

OLIVIA

Olivia is playing on a winter volleyball team again this year. This will be her last year to participate since it only goes to age 16. She's having a lot of fun and growing as an athlete. She goes to one all-day tournament a month.