

Good News - February 2020

This past month brought a lot of sickness to our volunteers, so Dan and Michelle kept busy substituting for clubs where the teacher was not able to be there. Visiting these clubs and meeting these kids is always a lot of fun. We love seeing how much they have been learning. They know Bible stories, verses, songs, and missionaries. We are encouraged and blessed to see how much they remember each week. Thanks for praying for them.

Cora and Seth are still enjoying their teaching jobs in Thailand. They are both currently enrolled in Master's courses as well. They are taking a pretty aggressive schedule of online classes. Cora's classes change every 5 weeks and Seth's change every 8 weeks. They both hope to finish in December, but it will be a very busy year. They also decided to sign up for another year at their school.

Caleb has started a new semester at The College at Southeastern in Wake Forest, NC. Because he was able to transfer some extra credits, he is now officially a senior. He's taking five classes this semester. He was also asked to be one of the spiritual group leaders in his dorm. He'll meet once a week to lead a Bible study with some younger students.

Jacob has also started a new semester of classes at Liberty. He said his classes are similar to last semester, but more interesting. This will probably continue to be true as he gets more involved with his major. He's taking Apologetics, Advanced Programming, Technical Communication, Statistical Analysis, Research, and Theology Survey II. He's also doing the computer programming for a robotics club for one extra credit.

Olivia is now in the second half of her senior year. She's not doing the winter volleyball league this year, and her school did not offer mock trial, so she finds she has a lot more free time than a year ago. Her studies have filled in much of that time as she's taking some very difficult classes that require a lot of work outside the classroom. She just finished a very creative video that was submitted to LeTourneau for a scholarship competition. She's hoping it leads to some funds to help with school.
