

GOOD NEWS

READY...SET...GO

We are thankful that we could all travel to Lynchburg for Jacob's graduation. It was a great time, even though it was cold and windy. We were able to get Olivia settled into her summer apartment while we were there, so that was a blessing.

Last month, we had dozens of teenagers attend our junior counselor training sessions. Many of them signed up for multiple weeks. We're thankful for these teenagers, most of whom are volunteers. We couldn't do camp without them.

Registrations are coming to the office in record numbers. The online registration and payment system has really helped to streamline things. It sometimes brings its own problems, but has mostly been a huge blessing. Pray that technology will work well all summer long.

We have booked nearly all of the teachers needed. We still have a few needs for bus drivers, nurses, and junior counselors. God will provide. On June 13th it all begins as the first group of campers and volunteers arrive. Praise God for what He has planned for our camp this summer.

CORA/SETH

Cora will arrive back in the states on June 3. Seth will come a bit later as he will first wrap things up in Bangkok. Together they will work to pack up all of their belongings and get them shipped to Washington. They will then drive their car to Washington, stopping in Oklahoma to visit family and Colorado to visit friends. God has provided a house for them to rent for the next year. Seth has a teaching job nearby. Cora is still looking for a job. Pray that God will lead her to just the right place. They have some big adjustments over the next few weeks and months.

JACOB

Jacob is enjoying some time of rest until his job begins in July. Pray as he needs to find a place to live near his job that is not too expensive.

CALEB

Caleb will be the camp chapel leader again this summer. He's already working with the script and props and coming up with creative ways to teach the Bible verses, songs, and biblical teachings that need to be stressed each day. This will most likely be his last summer to do this. He has really enjoyed it.

OLIVIA

Olivia finished her Sophomore year at LeTourneau University. She was only home for a few days before she went to Lynchburg, VA to start her internship. According to their website, the company she works for is a "leading supplier of nuclear components and fuel to the U.S. government." That is why she is not allowed to tell us what she does!
