New Ministry Year

We were talking to our volunteers at our open house, and many stated that this year feels like it will finally be a “normal” year. We’re not sure if that is true, but we hope to see things return to the way they were pre-COVID. We have already seen a better response from our visits to school open houses. Some signed up right there and others took forms to enroll later. At least two schools which had no children enrolled last year are starting the year with some children already enrolled. This is such an answer to prayer. We’re praying these clubs will grow to what they once were now that we have our foot in the door again.

Dan and Michelle will fill in at clubs that are short-staffed. It seems like those clubs are different nearly every year, but it’s exciting to be a part of so many different clubs. Several of our clubs lost some help, so we are praying God will provide to fill in those gaps.

Cora and Seth have started a new school year in Lynden, WA. Cora’s teaching certificate finally came through, so she has accepted some substitute positions while she is still looking for a teaching job at a local school. Pray that the right job will come to her at the right time. In the meantime, she has joined a quilting group at her church and is enjoying the company.

Caleb moved in with Jacob and they are adjusting to life in Towson. Their apartment and location are just perfect for them. They found a church they really like and have learned much about their new town. It’s been a great transition for them.

Olivia is enjoying her classes. Since she is now a junior she gets to take a lot of classes that are within her major. Those classes are her favorites. She loves spending time with other groups such as “Society for Women Engineers,” “American Welding Society” and “MuKappa,” a group for children of missionaries.

We had everybody home for just a few days this summer, so we were able to get this picture.
